

Chemours Fluoroproducts President Retires; Replacement Named

Wilmington, Del., April 29, 2016 – The Chemours Company (Chemours) (NYSE: CC), a global chemistry company with leading market positions in titanium technologies, fluoroproducts and chemical solutions, announced today that Thierry Vanlancker, president of its fluoroproducts business, is retiring. Paul Kirsch, senior vice president, supply chain and operations at Henkel AG & Company, will take over Vanlancker's role, relocating to Chemours global headquarters in Wilmington, Delaware. Vanlancker and Kirsch will work closely together to ensure a smooth transition for customers and other company stakeholders.

“Thierry has been instrumental in beginning the transformation of our fluoroproducts business—part of our larger Chemours five-point transformation plan—and I am confident that Paul will accelerate that work with a clear focus on customers, growth, and delivering results,” said Mark Vergnano, Chemours president and CEO. “Paul brings deep experience on the commercial side from his many former P&L roles, and I have no doubt that under his leadership our fluoroproducts business will achieve greater and faster growth, which ultimately serves the interests of all our company stakeholders.”
